

Enzo Silon Surin

100 Words

Enzo Silon Surin is a Haitian-born award-winning poet, author, educator, speaker, publisher, and social advocate. He has taught, performed, and lectured at schools, universities, festivals and serves as a keynote speaker on topics such as social justice, mental health reform, the immigrant experience, and racial disparities. He is the author of four collections of poetry, including American Scapegoat (Black Lawrence Press, 2023) and When My Body Was A Clinched Fist (2020), winner of the 21st Annual Massachusetts Book Awards. He is also Publisher at Central Square Press and Founder/Executive Director at the Faraday Publishing Company, a nonprofit literary services and social advocacy organization.